SCENARIO 1

You and your friends have been invited to a birthday party at someone's house. All your friends are really excited to go. On the day of the party you find out that there will be alcohol and the host's parents will be out of the house. Your parents would never allow you to go to a party without adult supervision.

SCENARIO 2

After practicing hard all summer, you have made the volleyball team. During the first few practices, one of the players everyone looks up to begins to make fun of the fact that you're the shortest player on the team. They create a nickname for you ("Squirt") and other players begin to use the name during and after practices.

SCENARIO 3

Your parents would like you to attend a high school with an excellent arts program because they, along with all your teachers, believe that you have a real talent and can possibly have a bright future in that field of study. None of your friends are going to that high school and you have doubts about how happy you'd be there.

SCENARIO 4

You entered a writing contest and won first place! You get to choose between a $300 cash prize or gift cards valued at $300. There are a few things you've had your eye on (shoes, clothes, electronics, etc.) but you also know the money can really come in handy (for either spending or saving).

SCENARIO 5

After going to the movies with some of your friends, you all walk over to a coffee shop for some hot chocolate. On the way, one of them pulls out a cigarette and starts smoking. When they see your shocked expression they say they've been doing that for a while and ask you not to tell their parents or they'll never speak to you again.
